Presto Group has acquired Finnish fire safety and shelter room company

Presto Group, Europe's leading active fire safety, first aid and training company, is now strengthening its presence further in Finland, by acquiring the fire safety company Sammutinhuolto Santtu Aitala Oy, which offers active fire safety and shelter room services.

Sammutinhuolto Santtu Aitala was founded in 2007 and operates in the Kymenlaakso region of southeastern Finland. The company is specialised in active fire safety and shelter room services, and have grown significantly over the past two years, due to the current political tension in the region.

– Our customers are more aware of the need of proactive safety solutions, and the demand for shelter room services has increased substantially. With Presto's strength and wide range of training and services we can continue to expand our offering and deliver safety to the Finnish people," says Santtu Aitala, CEO, and founder of the company bearing his name.

All current services of Sammutinhuolto Santtu Aitala will remain unchanged. In addition, customers will be able to take advantage of Presto's full range of products and services, including comprehensive safety training and first-aid.

– Santtu Aitala is a perfect match for our active fire safety service business. An expansion into new geographic areas, such as this acquisition, allows us to offer our services to an even broader customer base and together we will work towards our vision of saving more lives together," concludes Tero Roivainen, Country Manager at Presto Finland.
